This course explores the intersection of protest movements and Germanophone film. Covering the early 20th century through today, we will examine narratives of protest, avant-garde aesthetics of protest, as well as calls to action in contemporary documentaries covering a range of topics. Films will be made available with English subtitles, and readings as well as class discussions will be in English.